This is the last week of the city campaign and the nine candidates are on a hustle to drop five of their number. Saturday is the day.

Mrs. Galt seems to have been able to do more with the President than all the German diplomats. While the President was landing Germany, he got landed himself.

If the Presidential lovers want to do a sensible thing let them have an October wedding. Two months is too long to have the approaching marriage talked about.

The gossips say President Wilson went to New York to buy an engagement ring. Thought his fiancée owned a jewelry store. He is liable to be criticised for not patronizing home industries.

Recognition of Carranza, if accorded, would be based upon statements to the United States Government from Carranza authorities showing his military supremacy in Mexico and promises of protection to foreigners and their property and assurances of amnesty to political prisoners and of religious freedom to all. These statements and assurances are believed to have virtually convinced Administration officials that Carranza has met both the "material and moral capacity" required for the creation of a stable government.

PROPERTY RIGHTS RESTORED

No One Shall Suffer Because of His Religious Beliefs--South America in Accord.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Official advice has been received here that Argentina, Brazil and Chile are in accord with the decision of the United States to grant recognition to the party led by General Carranza as the de facto government in Mexico.

The form in which recognition is to be accorded has not been decided, but it may be done by formal notification to Eliseo Arredondo, authorized representative here of the Carranza government. Extension of recognition is expected within a week. This will result in the immediate order of embargo on arms against factions opposed to the Carranza government, a step which will weaken materially the resources of the Villa element. Miguel Diaz Lombardo gave out the statement in behalf of the Villa faction declaring that while it was a source of satisfaction that the United States had shown its sympathy with the Mexican constitutional revolution against Huerta by recognizing a revolutionary faction, nevertheless it was intended to demonstrate by further military operations that the Carranza party's supremacy was temporary.

It has become known that the first chief had given explicit assurances with reference to the protection of foreigners' claims, amnesty for political offenses and the treatment of the clergy.

FORMER CITIZEN OF CROFTON

Robert E. Long Dies in Tennessee--Interment at Crofton.

Robert E. Long, a native of this county, died at Lebanon, Tenn., last Thursday night of a complication of diseases. Mr. Long was about 40 years old and is survived by his wife and two children. He was a son of the late Aquilla B. Long, once jailer of this county, and resided at Crofton for a number of years, where he served as city marshal for several years. A year or more ago Mr. Long moved to Tennessee, where he had since been engaged in the hotel business. The deceased was a member of the Christian church and the Women of the World. The remains were brought to Crofton and the interment took place Friday.

Stanley and The Farmer.

Every farmer knows or should know, that Owsley Stanley has always advocated laws in their behalf. We don't know when any political party ever nominated a man in Kentucky, at least, who has kept his eagle eye so closely riveted upon the farmer's interest as Mr. Stanley has. The record shows that while in and out of Congress, he has never let an occasion escape him to befriend the cause of the farmer—the one man who does more to provide provisions for the want of mankind than any other. When Stanley takes his seat in the Executive Chair, the farmer's interest will be in the hands of its truest advocate known in the annals of Kentucky's political history.

The Redpath Lyceum's representative, Mr. Whiting, gave a banquet to about 100 leading citizens at the Avalon last night and submitted a proposition for the course to be put on this winter. The Lyceum did not put on a course last year, but this year it has arranged a most attractive one and a great deal of interest is already being taken in it. At the meeting last night short talks of approval were made by a number of citizens and Mr. Whiting explained his plan, which is detailed in this paper. The dinner was prepared by a committee of ladies and was a delightful affair.

DEATH CLAIMS J. W. LOGSDON

Veteran Railroad Man and Former L. & N. Superintendent Succumbs in Florida.

Evansville, Oct. 11.—John W. Logsdon, a veteran railroad man of this city, died Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Pensacola, Fla., where he had gone to benefit his health.

Mr. Logsdon was stationed in Evansville for over thirteen years as superintendent of the Henderson and St. Louis division of the Louisville and Nashville railway lines but was retired about a year ago.

Practically his entire life was spent in the service of the L. & N. He entered the service of the company as assistant agent in a small Kentucky town and rose rapidly. He soon became a telegraph operator and advanced to the post of agent.

From this position he became trainmaster of this division at Mt. Vernon, Ill., and from there came here as general superintendent. In all he spent about forty years on the railroad and had reached the age of 56 when he died.

The veteran superintendent was stricken with paralysis several months ago while on a sleeping car coming to this city from St. Louis. After being taken to his home he developed a severe cold and for a time was in a very critical condition.

RECOVERY NOT COMPLETE

He never completely recovered and in December last the company retired him. Late in the winter Mr. Logsdon, with his wife went to Pensacola, where he hoped to regain his health. He had made several trips here since leaving and was planning on returning to Evansville this winter.

About two weeks ago, however, he was again attacked with paralysis which resulted in his death.

Mrs. Logsdon was with him when he passed away and H. H. Cornick, assistant freight agent of the L. & N. here, who was summoned to Florida, reached his bedside shortly after he died.

Mr. Logsdon was widely known in railroad circles in St. Louis and Louisville and was very popular with all whom he came in contact.

He was a Mason and a Shriner and also belonged to the Elks lodge. He leaves besides his widow two sisters and one brother.

MORROW FOR THURSDAY

Republicans Preparing For a Big Rally at Tabernacle.

GOVERNMENTAL CANDIDATE

Big Effort To Hold The Republican's In Line Here.

Hon. Ed P. Morrow, the Republican nominee for Governor, will speak here next Thursday and the local committee is preparing for a rally at the Tabernacle.

The gubernatorial candidate was here during his campaign, but he is but little known to the general public. He comes with a reputation as an orator and is expected to arouse party enthusiasm.

GREAT RELIGIOUS DEMONSTRATION

Six Hundred and Fifty in Sunday School--Seven Additions To The Church.

The success of the rally Sunday at the Christian church was beyond the expectations of its promoters. The demonstration on the streets of Hopkinsville was the greatest and most impressive in the history of the city. There were one hundred and forty-five men and twenty-five youths in the march. Headed by two boys on horseback, and escorted by two policemen, the procession started from Virginia park and moved west on Ninth to Liberty. At the church the procession moved north past Hotel Latham to Sixth, then west to Main, south to Ninth, and east to the church. When the rear reached the court house, the front ranks were entering the church, making a line of parade about five blocks long.

Mr. B. B. Rice was general marshal in charge of the line formation. At the church a crowd conservatively estimated at six hundred and fifty assembled, where an unusually interesting program was carried out. The Cradle Roll exhibit was beautiful and touching. The exercises by the little tots were more than up to standard. Each class appeared on the platform and had a part in the program. Mention cannot be made of all. There were 115 in Mrs. T. P. Cook's women's class and 145 in the men's class taught by Judge C. H. Bush. A demonstration that could not be suppressed followed the march of the men around the church auditorium, led by Judge Bush.

Sunday night an audience that completely filled the great auditorium, and overflowed into the aisles where chairs were placed, gathered for the initial service of the revival. Mr. Harding with the great choir rendered splendid service. Mr. Harding is winning many golden opinions for his solo and choir work. He and Mrs. Harding sang a duet that was very pleasing and impressive. Mrs. Harding gave choir talks to the junior choir, which met yesterday afternoon. The junior choir sang last night, Mr. Jessup's text last night was, "An awful epidemic." During Sunday seven people united with the church.

Morris-Wade.

Raymond Morris and Miss Anna Lee Wade, daughter of Mr. H. S. Wade, were married in Clarksville last week. They motored over to the Tennessee town, accompanied by Miss Annie Lindsay, a close friend of the bride, and after the ceremony, they returned to this city, where they will reside.

Loot Not so Large.

Washington, Oct. 11.—Comptroller of the Currency Williams announced that the Baltimore & Ohio train robbed Friday at Wheeling carried only $57,000 in unsigned national bond notes. It was reported that there was $500,000 in such notes on the train. How much of the money on the train has been stolen has not been ascertained.

The comptroller's statement says the shipment was consigned to banks in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. The bandits have not been caught.

DIED SUNDAY.

J. H. Jones, a farmer living near Concord, died Sunday, of cancer, aged 64 years. The burial took place yesterday in the same neighborhood.

GERMAN HOLD BELGRADE

Serbian Rear Guards Merely Making Effort to Delay Progress of Invaders.

BIG BATTLE EXPECTED SOON

Bulgarians Have as Yet Made No Inursion Into Serbian Territory.

London, Oct. 11.—The Austro-Germans are in full possession of Belgrade and the heights surrounding the city and are marching east toward the mountains which the Serbians last year so stubbornly defended against the Austrians.

For some time to come the invaders, it is expected, will have to fight only the rear guards whose duty it is to delay their progress, for the Serbians will do doubtless as they have done before—fall back until they reach favorable positions. In fact, military writers here do not expect a pitched battle on this front for ten days or a fortnight, by which time the allies forces landed at Saloniki should have joined the Serbians.

The Bulgarians, so far as is known, have made no inursion into Serbian territory, and it is believed they will withhold their hands until they know how matters go with the Austro-Germans.

GREECE STILL NEUTRAL.

Greece and Rumania remained interested spectators, although the former has given assurance of her benevolent neutrality toward the allies.

Fighting on the various fronts brought about little or no change in the situation. The Germans, after two days' heavy fighting, in which, according to British and French accounts, they suffered a severe reverse, have abandoned for the moment the attempt to recapture territory won from them by the British south of La Basse. They do claim, however, to have retaken from the French some trenches east of Souchez and at Tahure, in Champagne.

Field Marshal von Hindenburg is making slow progress in his operations against Dvinsk, and, although he claims to have taken more of the Russian positions, he does not appear to be much nearer the city than he was two weeks ago.

The advance guard of the Austro-Germans that crossed into Serbia is reported to have been defeated. Those crossing the Danube at Belgrade were destroyed or captured and those crossing the Save met with enormous losses.

The Anglo-French force landing at Saloniki is making its way northward to assist the Serbs and to protect Macedonia from a Bulgarian invasion. The landing is proceeding despite the change in the Greek government. There is evidence that Greece will maintain a policy of benevolent neutrality toward the allies.

The death of John W. Logsdon, the well-known railroad man, will cause sorrow to his many friends here. For many years Mr. Logsdon was the L. & N. agent in this city and after his promotion to a higher place he made frequent visits here and always received a hearty welcome. He possessed a happy, cheery disposition that made friends wherever he went. He always loved Hopkinsville and many of the people held him in the highest regard.

An aerial army no longer is a dream of romance. Such an army, formed in divisions and squadrons, with battle aeroplanes, cruiser aeroplanes, scouts and torpedoplanes, all armored heavily and carrying three-inch cannon and rapid fire guns, is a reality. It has been made possible through the remarkable development of military aviation in France. The French government has permitted the first inspection of its new fleet of aeroplanes. Opportunity was given to inspect the large and small types of the new battle planes and watch them as they were maneuvering high in the air, firing round after round from their three-inch rifles while they soared, looped and darted about.

President Wilson and his fiancée, Mrs. Norman Galt, went to New York Friday for a brief visit to Col. E. M. House. From the time of their arrival until late at night they were New York's chief object of interest and every time they appeared in public they were followed by thousands. For the first time since he became President, Mr. Wilson gave way as a center of attraction to another, for the folks centered their eyes on the woman, who within the next two months is to become the "first lady of the land." Both the President and Mrs. Galt evidently were pleased by the reception accorded them. They were slightly shy on their first appearance in public as an engaged couple, but acknowledged applause with smiles. They made no attempt to hide themselves and every time they appeared they were side by side.

GOOD ROADS

WIDE TIRES IMPROVE ROADS

Mechanical Expert of Kansas College Gives Farmers Advice Based on Practical Experience.

"Wide-tired wagons pull more easily than narrow-tired ones 90 per cent of the times when they are used," says F. A. Wirt, instructor in farm mechanics in the Kansas state agricultural college. Professor Wirt has just completed experiments with wide and with narrow-tired wagons.

Narrow tires pull harder than wide tires, says Professor Wirt, because the narrow tire cuts deeper into the top soil. The wide tire does not cut so deep and makes a better track on roads which are traveled while the ground is soft. The wide tire packs the surface into a firm roadbed.

The experiments show that in cornfields, plowed fields, field lanes, and on pasture and on alfalfa land, the draft of the wide tire is considerably less no matter what the condition of the soil.

In places where the mud is deep and rolls up on the wheels, in ruts made by narrow wheels, or in a surface of mud with a hard ground beneath, the narrow tire will pull more easily. The narrow wheel fits the rut, on the hard bottom of which it runs, and it collects less mud than the wide tire.

Width of tire and height of wheel have a great effect upon the draft. The usual width of the narrow tire is one and three-fourths inches, while the wide tire is usually three or four inches wide. The tires used in the tests were one and three-fourths and four inches wide respectively. Six-inch wheels are used only on low trucks. One type of wheel rarely found is the low wheel with narrow tire. The draft with this is so great that a team can hardly pull a load in soft field surfaces.

A farmer who can afford only one wagon will find many factors entering into his selection. If he has to go on the roads in all kinds of weather, he will find the narrow tires better because they will collect less mud when the roads are bad. On the other hand, if he goes only when the roads are good, or uses the wagon in the fields a great deal, he will find the wide tire will be preferred because of the lighter draft and less damage to the fields.

One of the main points in favor of the wide tires is that their use greatly improves the roadbed, as they will pack the top soil making the roadbed firm and thus enabling it to drain well in time of rain. The wide tire will not cut up the meadow or field as does the narrow tire. This is also important, as a smooth surface in the meadow is much easier to mow over.

BAD ROADS CAUSE ACCIDENTS

Claims Made on Insurance Company for Four Deaths From Mishaps Due to Faulty Highways.

Do we need good roads? The report of a Chicago traveling man's insurance organization covers the payment of ten death claims for the first 50 days of the year, and of these four were deaths resulting from motor-car accidents due to bad roads.

It is singular that these four deaths occurred one each in the four northwestern states of Minnesota, the Dakotas and Montana.

In each case the traveling men's organization paid $5,000.

This furnishes a striking example of the financial and economic loss charged up directly to bad roads.

DETECTION OF DIRT IN MILK

Sediment Test Shows Dairyman Degree of Cleanliness of Milk—Covered Pail is Favored.

The sediment test is the best method of detecting dirt in milk. This test should be used wherever milk is sold. It shows the dairyman the degree of cleanliness of his milk.

In order that as little dirt as possible may adhere to the cows, clip their udders, flanks and tails. All loose dust can be easily brushed off with the hands before milking. Do not allow anyone to milk wet, as this is a filthy practice.

The cows keep unsold on grass in a night pasture, while if they are kept in a dry barnyard the loose, dry manure will stick to their udders and bodies and drop into the pail. If kept in the barnyard in rainy weather it is almost impossible to milk them without first washing their udders.

A covered pail closed about two-thirds with a hood, will keep out at least 75 per cent of the dirt. These pails are just as convenient to use as the ordinary ones, and cost little more.

A strainer will not take out the fine sediment in milk, but is useful for taking out hair and other large foreign stuff and is good for detecting the dirty milk. One farmer uses a strainer made from an ordinary 14-quart tin dishpan. A five-inch hole is cut in the center of the bottom. A ring two inches wide and of the same diameter as the hole is soldered on, over which another rings slips to hold the strainer cloth. Huck toweling makes a very good strainer cloth. Such a strainer covers a factory can.

preventing the milk from becoming exposed every time the can is opened. All cans and utensils are washed and scalded every time used, and given their daily sun bath to keep them sweet.

FEW PRACTICAL DAIRY HINTS

Pure Food Laws Won't Worry If Only Clean, Wholesome Products Are Sent to the Markets.

When counting the by-products of the dairy, do not forget the skim milk allowed to clabber, of which the delicious Dutch or cottage cheese is made. When not all is needed on the home table, it can readily be disposed of at good prices.

Send out only clean, wholesome food products, then the pure food laws will have no worry for you.

Don't feed lice, get rid of them. If the stock has been cleanly kept, there will be no lice to get rid of. Very seldom is a cow or calf lousy when in good condition. Keep their stalls and premises clean, give wholesome feed and enough of it, and the cows will not raise lice.

A little corn or bran will not hurt the cows and will save many steps of getting up the cows to milk. Don't forget the salt at the regular time. Grass requires more salt than did the dry feed of winter.

Feed the calves enough to have them do well. Allow them the run of a grassy, shaded lot, and unless supplied naturally with water, be sure to keep some before them.

Too rich feed may give the young calf indigestion. Guard against this, as after once becoming out of fix, it is much harder to regulate. Keep them well and keep them growing. This is true of all young stock, the only way to make a profit of it is to keep it growing.

Ration for Dairy Cows.

The average grain ration for dairy cows should contain at least one pound of cottonseed meal, as feeding this material results in a firmer fat and harder butter. The greasy appearance in the butter is caused by the softness of the fat globules, and the addition of the cottonseed meal will remedy this matter.

Water for Calves.

Set a pail of water into the corner of your calves' pen. You will find they will drink when not more than two weeks old. They often get very thirsty during the long, hot days of summer.

FOUND HIS BRIDE IN TOMB

Romance in Life of a Famous Venetian Composer—Sister Substituted Herself in Coffin.

Benedetto Marcello, one of the most famous Venetian composers, fell in love with a beautiful girl named Leonora Manfritto, who married Paolo Seranzo, a Venetian noble. She died in a short time after her marriage, a victim of the harsh and jealous treatment of her husband.

Her body was laid out in state in one of the churches, and her lover actually succeeded in stealing the corpse and conveying it to a ruined crypt in one of the islands, and here he sat day and night by his lost love, singing and playing to her, as though by the force of his art he could recall her to life, says the London Telegraph.

Leonora had a twin sister, Eliade, who was so like her that her closest friends could scarcely distinguish them. One day Eliade heard a singer in a gondola singing so exquisitely that she traced the gondola to the deserted island, and then she learned later the fate of her sister's corpse and the identity of Marcello. Aided by a servant, Eliade substituted herself for his sister's body, and when Marcello returned and called Leonora to awake he did not ask in vain, for apparently she rose alive from her coffin. Marcello, when he found out the delusion, was quite satisfied and married Eliade, but his happiness was short lived, as he died a few years afterward.

INCOME OF A STREET BEGGAR

Curious Resident on Opposite Side of Thoroughfare Places Contributions at $1,000 Yearly.

There was a certain Bartimeus who was wont to take his seat at the side of a crowded city street, with a well fed dog at the side sitting on a mat provided by his master, to protect his hinder-quarters from the cold stone. The dog held a tin money box attached to his collar. The man had a few lead pencils which he pretended were for sale.

The man simply sat, and the money rolled in. A curious resident on the opposite side of the street took lengthy observations, and then drew up a calculation based on the assumption that one cent was given every time a contribution was made, though frequently silver and sometimes a quarter was seen to descend into the tin, and taking into consideration the average number of absences in a given time due to inclement weather, the probable income amounted to about $1,000 a year.

The estimate may not be very exact, but it is nearer the truth than the ordinary passerby thinks, or the stream of coin would not be so copious. As he is no longer at the receipt of custom, the inference is that he has retired to live in the country or the proceeds.

Modern Greek.

In ancient times, before the conquest of Alexander the Great, there were many differences in the dialects spoken in different parts of Greece. About 330 B. C. a common dialect, sometimes called Hellenistic Greek, arose. This is the Greek of the New Testament.

By 800 A. D. the differences between the spoken and written language had become so great that the literary language was supplanted by the spoken. From this time the language has been further changed in grammar, inflection, and by the introduction of loan words from other languages, notably from the Italian and Turkish.

Since the Greek kingdom was established in 1830 there has been a movement toward the ancient idiom. This has resulted again in a gap between spoken and written Greek. The new movement has made such progress, however, that it is not too much to say that a modern newspaper would be now intelligible to Plato.

Fossilized Bacteria.

Marvelous as were the discoveries of such prehistoric monsters as the mammoth, the mastodon and the stegosaurus, they are now eclipsed by recent investigations which show the most minute microbes and bacteria in fossil form. The ancestors of our modern infectious disease germs and microbes have been found in fossils of the earliest life on earth. Fossil bacteria have been discovered in very ancient limestones collected by Dr. Charles D. Walcott, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, in Gallatin county, Montana. The bacteria consist of individual cells and apparent chains of cells which correspond in their physical appearance with the cells of micrococci, a form of bacteria of today. The world has believed that bacteria were modern forms of life, but now we are made to realize that they existed in the dawn of world history, many million years ago.

Differentiating.

Little Mary's big sister was engaged to Mr. Brown, who was away on an outing trip with Mary's brother. Her father was writing to them and asked the little girl if she had a message to send.

"What shall I say, papa?" asked she.

"Why," said the father, "I believe it is the fashion to send your love."

"Well," said the little miss, with a sigh, "you may send my fashionable love to Mr. Brown and my real love to Brother Tom."

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

There never has been a time when a newspaper was more needed in the household. The great war in Europe has now entered its second year, with no promise of an end for a long time. These are world-shaking events, in which the United States, willing or unwilling, has been compelled to take a part. No intelligent person can ignore such issues.

The Presidential contest also will soon be at hand. Already candidates for the nomination are in the field, and the campaign, owing to the extraordinary character of the times, will be of supreme interest. No other newspaper will inform you with the promptness and cheapness of the Thrice-A-Week edition of the New York World.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Hopkinsville Kentuckian for other one year for $2.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00

Remedy for Anger.

The greatest remedy for anger is delay; beg anger to grant you this at the first, not in order that it may pardon the offense, but that it may form a right judgment about it; if it delays, it will come to an end. Do not attempt to quell it all at once, for its first impulses are fierce; by plucking away its parts we shall remove the whole. We are made angry by some things which we learn at second hand, and by some things which we ourselves hear or see. Now, we ought to be slow to believe what is told us. . . . If you were about to give sentence in court about ever so small a sum of money, you would take nothing as proved without a witness, and a witness would count for nothing except on his oath. You would allow both sides to be heard; you would allow them time.—Seneca.

A Pine Whooping Cough Remedy.

Mothers, Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar-Honey is just the remedy for your children's cold ailments. The fact is that pine is a quick enemy of cold conditions. Its qualities loosen the mucus in the throat, soothe the lungs and open up the air passages. The combination of honey, soothing and pleasurable, with the loosening pine quality makes this an ideal cough remedy for children. Each passing year brings for it, new friends. A family of growing children cannot afford to be without it. 25c. a bottle.—Advertisement.

He Wanted the Job.

When Morris was seven years old his mother was one day reading to him about the kings of England. After she had closed the book he remained silent and thoughtful for some minutes, then asked, "Mother, do they have kings in this country?" "No, dear, don't you remember I told you we have a president here?" Another silence and then very earnestly and gravely the little fellow said, "I'm sorry about that, mother, for I was just thinking I would like to be it."—Christian Register.

Diplomas for Everything.

An eastern lover of music wants a law passed which will require teachers of music to take examinations to prove their fitness to teach. Then, of course, there will be the same requirement for dancing teachers and bridge teachers and boxing teachers. The man without a diploma will feel very lonesome.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

ENGLISH LEARNING TO SHOOT

At Match for Boys, Assemblage Is Amazed to Hear Youngster Call on Father for Bull's-Eye.

"Young Astor," said a Chicago editor, "has just given $100,000 to the British Red Cross. I congratulated him on his arduous last month in London, but he said, with a laugh, that such arduous was common all over England."

"He said that all over England they were learning rifle shooting in their patriotic ardor now. There was a rifle shooting match not long ago in the village of Combe Martin for boys between fourteen and seventeen. It was astonishing how many boys took part in the match—the prize was a substantial one—and some of the seventeen-year-old youngsters had astonishingly mature faces."

"As one of these urchins was in the midst of a very brilliant display of rifle shooting, the assembly was amazed to hear a little boy in the front row yell:

"Gon on, father! Hurray! Give us another bulls-eye."

Smooth Oratory.

"He's a smooth politician, all right." "In what way?" "Didn't you notice in his speeches he never referred to the workingmen's humble cottages?" "No; what did he call them?" "Always he said: 'You in your modern bungalows.'"

BEST REASON.

Tragedian—I am going to give her lessons in acting.
Comedian—Has she talent?
Tragedian—Well, she has money.

Who Is to Blame?

Mr. Gedeon—Do you remember, Jose, where I put my cigarettes the other night?
Jose—No, I don't, sir.
Mr. Gedeon—These servants! They never remember anything!—Santiago (Chile) Successors.

Nothing to Him.

"Did Blabson's love affair have a happy ending?"
"I presume so. I saw his former fiancée the other day and she must weigh at least 200 pounds."
"Do you suppose that makes Blabson happy?"
"At least it doesn't make him unhappy. You see, she didn't marry Blabson."

Just So.

"The first of our line, Sir Higgleby Piggleby, founded the family fortunes with a grist mill he ran."
"When did he run this grist mill?"
"Back in 1560 or thereabouts."
"Oh, yes. I've often heard that those were the times when knighthood was in flour."

Mutual Help.

"Say, old man," quoth the farmer, "I wish you'd train my son to be a lawyer in your office. There's nothing in farming."
"I'll do it," assented the lawyer, "provided you'll take my son on your farm. There's nothing in the law."

A Nickel-Plated Romance.

"They say Mayme married the meanest man in town."
"I should think so. Why, where do you think he took her for a wedding tour?"
"Where?"
"On a round trip in a jitney bus."

Dangers of Delay.

"Learn to do one thing and learn to do it well," remarked the ready-made philosopher.
"Yes," answered the pessimist; "but by the time you have done that somebody not quite so conscientious has got the job."

The Kind.

"Mrs. Jinks is always away down in the depths and making herself miserable, yet she seemed much surprised when her husband decamped in a hurry."

"Then his flight was really a bolt from the blue."

No 'Luck Either Way.

"So you believe Friday is unlucky?" "Yassuh," replied Mr. Erastus Pinkley. "If I begins sumpin' on Friday it's liable to turn out unlucky; an' den, agin, eef I puts it off an' don't begin it on Friday, dat's liable to be unlucky, too."

A Chain of Antagonism.

"Are your relations with Jawkins friendly?"
"No," answered Mr. Growcher. "That's one reason why I don't like my relations."

No Democrat should allow himself to be guided by the shallow claims of the enemy. They have no money with which to make this campaign, but Bradley's nephew and Hunter's son both know the "gum shoe" tactics thoroughly. That's the way they hope to ride into office. Just by the surprise route. Watch 'em. Urge your Democratic neighbors to go to the polls and take his neighbor along with him. Kentucky is a Democratic state by fifty thousand and Stanley and the rest of the ticket are entitled to a full Democratic vote. "Gum shoe" tactics will only win when you are off your guard. Go to work right now and find out who is who in your neighborhood. Tell your county chairman the conditions of things and do your part toward voting and no complaint can be found with you or your Democracy. Let's see if we can't outdo all former elections in the way of big majorities. Let every man do his part in electing Stanley and the Democratic ticket and just as sure it will be a forerunner of great victory for 1915 throughout the state.

Let Them Marry.

We have always been a strong friend of Woodrow Wilson, but now we are stronger for him than ever before, since we have heard that he is going to take unto himself another wife.

No man can remain great and be a good business man and exercise that good diplomacy that is necessary for him at this time without a wife. Men with wives are more capable and successful than those who try to pass along through life without them, more especially the widower.

If misfortune overtakes a man and he loses his wife by death or otherwise and becomes a widower, then the sooner he gets married, the better it is for him and the community in which he lives and the business in which he is engaged.

Some women think that Mr. Wilson has been so engrossed in his diplomatic work, in trying to keep the country out of war, that he had no time to make love to anybody, but in this we find them very much mistaken, because a great diplomat in national affairs is no less a diplomat in love affairs.

It is true that some will criticize him because he did not wait longer until he became engaged to this beautiful widow, when the fact of it is the longer he waits to get married the less capable a widower is of making his second wife happy.

We are very enthusiastic now for Mr. Wilson, for the second term. And we are satisfied when he receives the help and encouragement of a good wife that the United States will be kept out of war, and peace and happiness for the whole people will continue.—Mayfield Messenger.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS IN TRENTON GAME

Well Played Game and Score of 15 to 6.

Hopkinsville High School defeated the Trenton Athletic Club 15 to 6 in a well played game Friday afternoon. As a whole the game was interesting and hard fought from whistle to whistle.

High scored in the middle of the first quarter when Brown bucked the ball over for a touchdown after a gruelling march down the field for 60 yards. In the next quarter after seessawing up and down the field to no advantage, Trenton held for 3 downs on the 25 yard line. Brown dropped back and added three more points when he placed the ball squarely between the cross arms with a pretty drop kick.

Trenton obtained its only tally in the third quarter when Breathitt fumbled a point, and W. Chestnut recovered the ball for a touch down.

The last tally was scored by Breathitt with a beautiful 30 yard run on a forward pass. Score H. H. S. 15. Trenton 6.

The High School team showed vast improvement over their last local appearance. The line played hard and held commendably at critical times. The back field interference showed the great progress that Coach Mallary has made with team. Brown and Breathitt deserve especial mention.

The Trenton aggregation deserve praise for their sportsmanship and knowledge of the game. They put up as good an exhibition of clean football as could be desired. S. B. Chestnut was their star in the offensive.

Charles Petrie, the old High School quarter of 1910, and all Kentucky guard of State University, was the power on the defense. He was every play tackled clean and hard, and was the spirit of the team. In spite of his lack of condition he showed the qualities of aggressive head work that won him a place on all State teams.

Referee—Coffman, Umpire Soyars, Linesman Cook. Touch downs—Brown, Breathitt and Chestnut. Drop kick—Brown.

Little One Taken.

"Safe in the arms of Jesus."
Died Friday morning, Oct. 8th, Walter Miller, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Clark, near the city, of colitis.

The above lines of this beautiful song were realized on Friday morning, Oct. 8th, by the bereaved ones who stood around the couch of little Walter Miller Clark when the bright eyes closed and the heart ceased its pulsations. For fourteen months he was the sunshine of his home, the idol of parents and grand-parents when death's angel came and bore his pure spirit to the arms of the blessed Savior whose loving words must ever serve to comfort the bereaved ones of earth. "Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." And now, the little feet can never walk in paths of evil, the little body can never feel another pain, and though he leaves many aching hearts that his bright presence was wont to fill with joy and gladness, he can never know any thing but happiness. Then let this thought console all who loved the dear baby so fondly, he is happy and safe forever and some time you will know and feel that it was best for the child and be able to say "Thy will be done" "Blessed be the Lord who taketh; blessed be the Lord who gave."

KENTUCKY RURAL CREDIT ASSOCIATION

GOVERNOR JAMES B. McCREARY, President

Money at 5 Per Cent. on 10, 20, 30, 40 and 50 Years Option With The Borrower

THE KENTUCKY RURAL CREDIT ASSOCIATION

Is loaning money to its members in Christian and Todd counties at 5 Per Cent.

The books of the Association show for the first year of its operation assets of $534,157.84, with surplus over and above all liabilities of $161,313.14.

This Company is Co-operative in every respect and has over 4,000 members. For further information call or telephone

This Letter is Published by the Consent of R. C. Arnold.

Kentucky Rural Credit Association, Lexington, Ky.

Friends:—

I want to thank you for the manner in which you have handled my loan and I am mighty glad that I am a member of an organization that is out to help the farmer and not to rob him.

This is the first time in my experience that I have ever been able to borrow money at 5 per cent. on such a long period of time, and the farmer who doesn't realize the same benefits from this Association certainly doesn't understand it.

The only reason the farmer is unable to borrow money to-day the same as other industries do, is for the reason they haven't any way to guarantee their securities. Relief has at last come to the farmer through the "Kentucky Rural Credit Association," and any one who isn't benefited by this Association has only himself to blame.

I am speaking from actual experience for I have received my money and know what I am talking about, and heartily recommend this Association to all my friends.

Very truly,
R. C. ARNOLD.

P. S. The above loan was made on the 20 year plan. The borrower repays both principal and interest by small payments each year.

Intricate Perplexities.

When Owsley Stanley takes his seat as Governor of Kentucky the state legislature had better wake up and take notice, for there will be one governor of this grand old Commonwealth who will not allow any deception or perplexing entanglements escape his watchful eyes. All environments around the executive mansion, will be compelled to come clear or he, Mr. Stanley, will know the reason why. As a man, as a lawyer and as a magnificent judge of human nature he will call a spade a spade, and none of the solons will ever be able to insert jokers in any legislative act without his detecting the smart aleck's intentions. So Messrs. Solons toe to the constitution or get off the perch.

Geo. G. White, who fell down an elevator shaft six stories, in Nashville, will recover. A broken leg was his worst injury.

Mrs. E. C. Cobb of Macon, Ga., wants a divorce because her husband rarely speaks to her oftener than once in two weeks.

Lemon Assesses Fines.

Through some misunderstanding Col. Hal Corbett, of Paducah, and Hon. Denny P. Smith, of Cadiz, failed to show up at Mayfield for a speaking appointment last Monday. Commenting on this, Col. Jim Lemon, of the Mayfield Messenger, says that while the Democrats of Graves county were disappointed in not hearing these distinguished Democrats and able speakers, yet they could not have done much good had they filed the Mayfield appointment, since the Graves Democracy is ready now for the voting to take place and could not be in better shape. Col. Lemon, however, assessed a fine of $5 each on Col. Corbett and Mr. Smith, which he directs that they send forthwith as a contribution to the campaign fund. — Louisville Times.

Memphis Man Drives Automobile Into Tree While Racing With Another Machine.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 11.—Lieut. Frank M. Harris, U. S. N., attached to the battleship Delaware, now at the Norfolk yards for repairs, was almost instantly killed early Sunday morning when he drove his automobile into a tree while racing with another machine along the road near the Country club of Virginia. Harris was the son of Mrs. Nannie Patterson Harris, 300 Jefferson avenue, Memphis, and was a graduate of the 1910 Annapolis class. Strange to say, other passengers in his machine, including Lieut. Henry E. Parsons, in charge of the local navy recruiting station, escaped practically unhurt.

The body was shipped to Memphis to-night, accompanied by Lieut. W. C. Hayes and W. R. Harris, shipmates on the Delaware.

"Tipperary" Now a Hymn.

(Owen County Democrat)
More than 100 Baptist ministers adopted the tune of "Tipperary" to the words of a hymn of their own composition at the weekly conference here as a means of attracting public attention to things religious. "We should utilize popular ditties which everybody whistles and sings in order to focus attention upon the church," declared the Rev. Clarence Woolston, the author. Here's the way the chorus goes:
It's a good thing to be a Christian,
It's the best thing I know;
It's a good thing to be a Christian,
Wherever you may go.
Good-bye sin and Satan,
Farewell all that's bad.
It's a good thing to be a Christian,
For it makes my heart glad.

$800 Reward.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 11.—Gov. McCreary has offered a reward of $400 for the arrest of the unknown murderers of Will Cathron, who was killed when a house was dynamited at Nortonville, October 5. The Nortonville Coal Co. has offered $200 and Hopkins county $200 additional, making $800.

Earliest English Surname.

History shows that surnames did not come into general and hereditary use in England until after the Norman conquest, when the upper classes were first known by the names of their lands. The lower orders took the names of trades, birds, animals and various other objects in art and nature. We are told that the earliest English surname is "Hatte."

The baseball reporter at Philadelphia thus reported the President's entrance into the box reserved for him Saturday: "President Wilson was escorted to his seat by a chairman of the Philadelphia police. Mrs. Galt walked a few steps ahead of the President. He wore a dark brown suit and carried a beautiful bunch of orchids." We insist that the lady ought to at least carry the flowers.

Drowned in Hot Water.

Boston, Oct. 11.—The body of Mrs. Bowdoin B. Crowninshield, wife of the well known yacht designer of Marblehead, was found in a bathtub filled with hot water in the Parker House. The cause of death, according to Medical Examiner George P. McGarth, was accidental drowning. It was found that the hot water had been left running. The body was badly scalded.

Girl Raises Tobacco Crop.

Maryville, Ky.—Miss Betha Mastin, about 15 years old, daughter of C. I. Peter Mastin, who resides on Tine Lick, has just finished housing a crop of tobacco she has raised herself, attending and watching it from the planting to the housing. It is a fine crop. Last year she raised and marketed a nice crop, selling it in this city at a good price.

Big Day in Cadiz.

Cadiz, Ky., Oct. 11.—Saturday was School Rally Day and something like 1,400 children of the county were here. The crowd in town was estimated at from 3,000 to 3,500. There were 1,000 school children in the parade, which was headed by the Third Regiment Band, of Hopkinsville. Much interest was manifested in the contests in the afternoon. Blue Spring school won the prize for bringing eighty-seven children through town one wagon drawn by four big mules.

Read how Germany and Austria, fearful of the monster's latent strength, have been trying to checkmate her and how they have pinned all in this last, supreme stake.

The Lesson of the Past

THIS master of the pen shows you the glow that was Greece's and the grandeur that was Rome's. He guides you through the Middle Ages, the picturesque old days of feudalism and the crusades; through the Renaissance up to contemporary history, which Prof. Duruy completes in brilliant manner. In the story of the past he tells the secrets of today. And you will understand them better when you get the Review of Reviews for a year—for the Review of Reviews will give you a concise interpretation of the events that are taking place with such rapidity. It is not enough to read the daily news reports. Your ability to comprehend conditions, and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the "reason why" of events. WHOLE THEATER UNDER HAT

Carlyle, With His Usual Astuteness, Recognized Qualities of Dickens at Quite an Early Stage.

Charles Dickens dealt not with subtleties of character, but with broad human emotions. His good people were all very good and his bad people were all unmitigatedly bad—a set of affairs almost unknown in real life. In short, he was a dramatist; his figures stood for something, they were an impersonation of ideas and motives.

Carlyle, with his usual astuteness, recognized it at quite an early stage of Dickens' popularity.

"I had to go yesterday to Dickens' reading at the Hanover rooms," he writes, "to the complete upsetting of my evening habits and spiritual composure. Dickens does it capably, such as it is; acts better than any Macready in the world; the whole tragic, comic, heroic, theater visible, performing under one hat and keeping us laughing—in a sorry way, some of us thought—the whole night. He is a good creature, too, and makes fifty or sixty pounds by each of these readings."

A whole theater under one hat—that is really the true description of Dickens, far truer than the remark that he is a whole library in a few volumes.

Later Generally a Hard Task. It is easier for some men to make money than it is for them to spend it to the satisfaction of their wives.

BOISE'S HOT WATER SUPPLY

Natural Artesian Wells Furnish City More Than Can Be Used—Big Swimming Tank Established.

Boise, Ida., has all the hot water it wants for every purpose at no expense except for the piping. There are natural artesian wells just outside the city at the foot of a range of hills which furnish more hot water than can be used, water at a temperature of 172 degrees. A vast city swimming tank with electric lights at the bottom has been built there. The water is cooled to the proper bathing temperature, and here the whole town bathes. The hot water is piped to heat buildings and residences, says the Technical World, and for use for every purpose that such water may be wanted. The city streets are sprinkled with hot water, chiefly because there is none other handy. The problem in Boise is to make artificial ice to cool the water sufficiently for drinking purposes. Of course there is cold water, but the hot variety is the more plentiful. The wells are 400 feet deep and the supply is so great that truck farms are irrigated from them. The waste product helps the dam in Snake river, which generates power for electric light and supplies cold as well as hot water for domestic use.

ATTIRE OF MEXICAN WOMEN

Poorer Class Accept Without Protest Style of Dress Which Custom Has Dictated to Their Class.

As to the women of peons, their dress is generally somber hued and modest. No scarlet blanket covers them, but a blue reboso, or shawl, which is generally placed over the head in lieu of a hat.

The women of the poorer classes accept, with what to the foreigner seems almost a pathetic resignation, the style of dress which custom has dictated to their class.

There is no aping of the rich in their attire. Whether it be the fine lace mantilla or the Parisian hat which the far-distant-from-here senorita wears, as in temple or plaza she takes her dainty way, or the pretty frock or delicate shoes, the poor woman of the peon, or the muler of the petty shopkeeper, casts no envious glance—but no, that would not be true!

She casts them, but she will not strive to imitate. Is there not some virtue in such non-emulation, or is it but the spirit of a deadened race? Yet this rather somber and unattractive apparel is found more among the peon class; the Indian girl in some parts of Mexico—as at Tehuantepec—wears a handsome native costume, derived from Aztec days, at holiday time.

Women's Feet Cubist Landscapes.

Once—ages ago, so long that scarcely anyone remembers it (about three months, I should think it was)—shoes differed in size and in state of preservation, but their colors were black or tan and women kept them on by lacing them up the front or buttoning them up the side. That was all; there was nothing more to it; the imagination went no further. Today women do not wear shoes at all; their feet are incased in cubist landscapes, in futuristic music—in vers libres. It is enough to say that with eyes downcast below the line where skirt and boot top meet it is impossible nowadays to determine whether a woman is walking ahead of you, coming toward you, skidding to one side or endeavoring to climb up in the air. All the old points of the pedal compass have been multiplied, interchanged or entirely abandoned. There is nothing to steer by and one speculates on whether or not the wearers know where they are going themselves. They probably don't. Signs of the times—signs of the times!—Vanity Fair.

MANAGEMENT OF THE BODY

Extreme Care Should Be Exercised by Those Who Are Afflicted With Defective Heart.

A person with a defective heart must remain, in everything he does, well within the limit of his strength. Though able to walk fifteen blocks, he should not walk more than twelve; though able to work three hours, he should work only two, and rest, if possible, every hour for a few minutes, to avoid fatigue. When able to get along with seven hours' rest and sleep, he should rest and sleep at least nine hours. His recuperative power is lowered and it takes, when overtired, days and weeks to regain strength which a healthy person recovers in one night. He endangers his future whenever he goes beyond his strength even a little, or only to the point where he begins to feel tired. He may do as much as an average healthy person, but he must divide the work into periods of short duration. What may happen in a year or two must be considered rather than whether, for the present, the heart can stand the effort. The best protection for the future is a proper adjustment of effort at all times to one's strength.—Exchange.

Marvelous Instrument.

A marvelous instrument, the compound interferometer, has been invented by Prof. C. W. Chamberlain, president and head of the physics department of Denison university. With this instrument it is possible to measure a distance as small as 1-20,000,000th of an inch. This instrument will in all probability be the most delicate measuring instrument of its kind for many years to come. It is practically impossible for the human mind to realize the smallness of the distance measurable by the compound interferometer, which is 400 times as powerful as the most perfect compound microscope, but some idea can be formed by the use of comparisons. This 1-20,000,000th of an inch is the apparent size of the head of an ordinary pin viewed at a distance of 227 miles, or the size of a 50 cent piece viewed at a distance of 9,000 miles, or the size of a human face viewed at distance equal to twice the circumference of our mother earth.

New Armored Motor Car.

A novel type of armored motor car has been designed by a resident of Lowell, Mass. It contains some very original ideas as to protection from rifle and gun fire. The car is shaped exactly like a turtle, the upper and lower shell being joined at a distance of about sixteen inches above the ground. The wheels are almost entirely covered by the armor. The latter is composed of steel shells, curved to represent a turtle back, the inventor claiming that such a construction renders the persons in the car immune from rifle and machine gun fire, as the bullets are deflected into the air. Loopholes for firing, a periscope for steering, emergency doors in the rear and on both sides, a powerful motor under the driver's seat, and a quick-drying gun mounted on a revolving base—these are all parts of the design.

Parrot Fights for Master.

When R. A. Whitby, a United States marine, was arrested by the police a parrot that Whitby carried under his arm put up a fight, and the sailor was compelled to call off the bird before the officer could place Whitby in the patrol wagon.

When the prisoner was taken to the city hall the parrot refused to let the police put Whitby in a cell without permitting the bird to occupy the same place of confinement. Whitby and the parrot were both released after a hearing.—Chester (Pa.) Dispatch to Philadelphia Inquirer.

Straw for Panama Hats.

Toquilla straw, from which Panama hats are made, is obtained from five or six species of the palm. The most important of these is known as Carludovica palmata, and grows in the warm, moist regions of the Pacific coast in Colombia and Ecuador, and also in the forests of Peru along the headwaters of the Amazon. This palm attains a height of six to ten feet. The leaves are fan shaped. Toquilla straw is exported to the United States and other countries, where the hats are made by machinery.

Can't Lose Sight of Golf Ball.

C. T. Ramsay of Liverpool, England, has received a patent for an optical instrument which can be worn over the eyes like a spectacle and by which the sight of the player is concentrated on the ball, the opaque "blinkers" having a relatively small aperture through which, and through which alone, the wearer can see, and thus the distance in front and behind the ball is so small that he must see it definitely. He is thus compelled to keep his eye on the ball, says the Scientific American. The blinkers are adjustable, so they can be set to suit the eyes of different persons.

MARTHA'S MINIATURE

Alan Fought for His Own Happiness—And Won.

By CATHERINE COOPE.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Alan Dobie sighed heavily as he hung up the telephone. He had rung up his fiancée's studio, only to find out from the maid that Martha was out and would not return until dinner time.

"Which means," Alan told himself bitterly, "that my sweetheart is at the matinee worshipping at the shrine of her idol."

For many weeks Alan had been aware of the fact that Martha had been drifting away from him. She did not love him in the deep, true sense of the word or she could not have fallen a victim to the undoubted charm of John Ward, the fascinating actor of the day.

Alan's love for Martha was as undying as the day itself, and it hurt him to realize that the girl whom he had expected to call his wife and for whom all his future had been planned was finding her happiness elsewhere than in his love. Martha had flirted from time to time during their brief engagement, but never before did Alan feel that his position in her affections had been jeopardized. Now, however, it seemed that Martha had really been lost to him.

So completely absorbed was Martha in the worship of John Ward that she had painted a most beautiful miniature of the actor from a magazine photograph and wore it almost every hour of the day. The exquisite little locket lay against her heart, a constant source of pain to Alan Dobie. Martha did not know that Alan had stolen a glance into the locket during a chance moment, nor that he wished with all his heart that she could meet the actor. Perhaps the disillusionment would follow, and if not then certainly his fate would be sealed in regard to Martha's affections.

But a meeting did not come about even in the atmosphere of the studio. Martha worshiped in secret and in secret Alan grieved. He felt, as time wore on and there seemed no lessening of the interest his sweetheart was showing regarding the actor, that he must do something to precipitate an outcome to the situation.

Alan had never from the beginning taken the position of adviser to Martha, nor had he felt called upon to dictate her actions. Perhaps had he been more strict, in a sense, Martha's affections would have been secure. She might have feared to arouse jealousy in the bosom of her easy-going Alan. As it was she went her way flirting where she chose and only feeling a certain sense of security about Alan and her future. She did not trouble especially to weigh her emotions nor to speculate as to what another day might bring forth.

Through genuine talent Martha had made for herself an enviable position among miniature painters. Had she been a mere nobody in the intellectual world Alan would have considered himself capable of guiding her, but she had won success entirely unaided and he felt it unnecessary to advise her, much as he thought she needed it.

Alan realized, with a sinking of the heart, that Martha's interest in John Ward was developing rather than waning. A crisis was surely at hand. Alan was not the man to marry a girl who only half loved him. He must either break with Martha or win her entire self.

It was during one of Martha's popular Sunday afternoon teas that she first discovered the loss of her prized locket with the miniature of John Ward in it. Her heart pounded against her side when she discovered that it was gone, and in imagination she saw herself taunted by her secret admirer for an actor. All of her friends would learn of her infatuation for no one could fail to know that the miniature was her own. Her famous touch was not to be denied. For once in her life Martha shrank from the fame that was hers and the disclosures following in the wake of the finding of her locket.

Instinctively she realized that Alan Dobie would not want to take up his life path with a girl who wore another man's picture. She shrank, too, from his scorn and for a second blamed John Ward for the entirely unconscious part he was playing in her life maneuvers.

Martha refrained from making inquiry about her locket, but after her guests had departed made minute search in every remote corner of the studio. The locket, however, was lost and with it had gone Martha's peace of mind. The fear gripped her that it might fall into the hands of John Ward and Martha's shame would know no end. Naturally, one finding it and recognizing the well-known actor, the first impulse would be to dispatch it to him.

It was with no little misgiving that Martha waited the turn of events. Of course, she could, if John Ward received the locket and in turn brought it to her, having recognized her touch, disclaim any knowledge of it.

At the thought of her idol making himself known to her, Martha quite reconciled herself to the loss of the miniature, and her heart lost a beat as she anticipated the prospect of being in the same room with him and perhaps shaking his hand. For the time being Alan was forgotten. She thought only of the joy of meeting John Ward and perhaps—But Martha did not let her thoughts go further than the meeting.

It was a week before the half expected happened. The great matinee idol did receive the locket, and he did make his way to Martha Helder's studio.

The conceit with which many actors make their way in the world was not lacking in John Ward. An all-consuming curiosity as to the personality of the girl whose name and address he had found in the locket which had been sent anonymously to him led the actor to make his way leisurely toward that address. He had donned his most becoming habiliments and his most entrancing manner. Surely a girl who had so lost her heart to him was worthy at least a call of inspection. She would be quite overcome upon seeing him. Of that Ward was certain. He thought, deep in his heart, that perhaps the girl herself, wishing to know him, had sent the locket in the hope that he would present himself at her studio door.

Martha, being guiltless either of the flattery or the indiscretion of seeking an introduction to her idol, controlled the wild beating of her heart when his card was presented to her, and went in to meet him.

When he had introduced himself, which was quite unnecessary, and had held Martha's hand an unnecessary length of time—the while he smiled softly into her eyes—John Ward drew forth the locket.

"I am flattered that one of our greatest miniature painters should have chosen so unworthy a subject for the expression of her art," he said, and smiled that peculiarly fascinating smile. "This locket containing my likeness was sent to me anonymously, and, finding an address engraved within, I took the liberty—"

"Address! What address?" exclaimed Martha, while a spot of red flamed in either cheek.

The actor drew unapologetically near to her and showed her the line engraving within the locket. Martha's name and address had been deliberately carved therein.

She drew a swift breath and her steady eyes held off the flowery speech that was on John Ward's lips.

"I have no idea how my address came to be engraved there. I have painted miniatures of all our well-known actors for a friend of mine who is an inveterate collector," Martha lied glibly. She knew that the situation required drastic measures if she were to extricate herself gracefully. "I will have to take that ivory out of the locket now."

She looked quickly at John Ward and laughed softly as if at a good joke. "How very funny," she added. "It almost looks as if some person was trying to make trouble between my fiancé and myself as well as putting you to a great deal of trouble to return the locket."

John Ward bowed himself not ungracefully out of Martha's studio. He felt, and not without reason, that he had made a great mistake in thinking the girl capable of a hopeless passion for himself. Martha had played her part well.

When the elevator had descended with her caller Martha dropped into the nearest chair and pondered with all her might. Who had taken her locket from her studio with the deliberate intention of bringing John Ward and her together? Someone who desired to see her engagement to Alan Dobie broken. Of that Martha was certain. She never quite knew what prompted her to go immediately to the telephone and call up Alan.

"Do you happen to know anything about my miniature of John Ward?" she asked with the frankness that had first endeared her to Alan.

"I am like George Washington," Alan's voice laughed back at her. "Did he turn up? I was anxious to hear how my little scheme worked out. I have known all along, Martha, that you wanted to meet him. You are not angry, are you?" Alan had controlled his voice so that Martha felt only that he was desirous of her happiness and not that he was fighting for his own.

"Do you want to—to get—to break our engagement—so badly?" In spite of herself Martha shrank from what Alan's loved voice might say. She gripped the receiver with hands grown suddenly weak. After all there was no one like Alan in the whole world, and all the actors on Broadway were not worth one hair of Alan's head. If Alan, big, generous Alan, who had flung his happiness to the wind and striven for her own, did not love her enough to come straight up and tell her so, then—Martha ceased to think rationally and found that she was putting her thoughts into words over the telephone and that Alan would be with her as soon as a taxi could bring him.

It Certainly Was.

"And you are afraid of the dark, Tommie?"

"Yes, ma'am."

"But there's nothing in the dark to hurt you."

"Well, what's pop limping around for?"

"Oh, he fell over a chair when he came home late last night."

"Well, that was in the dark, wasn't it?"

Good Guess.

Greene—Yes. Had trouble going out. We stopped several times, but coming back we didn't make a stop. "I see; you were towed home."

Quarantined.

In one of the little mountain towns of the South a chautauqua meeting was held last summer for the first time. The fact was advertised for some distance round the town, but the older negroes, especially, did not understand what it was all about. Across the front of the little hotel of the village was hung a banner bearing the one word, "Chautauqua." Up to this hotel one day drove an old negro in a one-horse wagon containing a few vegetables, which he hoped to sell to the proprietor, as he had done on former occasions. But when he saw the banner with its ominous word he was seized with fright and would not go into the building, or even get out of his wagon. When the proprietor appeared, the old fellow inquired nervously, "What disease is you-all quarantined for, boss?"—Youth's Companion.

Kaltenborn String Quartette, of New York, and Elsie Baker, Opening Number Here. Fourteen Other Attractive Evenings of Music, Oratory and Entertainment Scheduled.

Some of The Attractions Coming on The Big Redpath Series:

Under the auspices of The Ministerial Union what is known as the "Redpath Series" of great music, oratory and entertainment will be inaugurated here, opening with The Kaltenborn String Quartet and Elsie Baker on Thursday Oct. 21, at the Tabernacle. In this great series there will be fifteen evenings throughout the fall and winter. A Redpath Series means much to any city, for it brings some of the greatest talent within reach of the masses at prices which they can afford.

The holder of a membership ticket at $1.00 becomes eligible to a seat on all fifteen evenings at 10 to 20c. The Redpath Series plan of membership and reserving is fully outlined elsewhere on this page. The attractions in this year's series are briefly described as follows:

The Kaltenborn String Quartet has for twenty one years been the leading chamber music organization of New York City. Schumann-Heink, Louise Homer and Caruso have appeared with the Kaltenborns. Elsie Baker, America's beloved contralto, well known for her Victor Records as well as her recitals, will appear as soloist on this tour.

Alton Packard, often referred to as the successor of the famous cartoonist Frank Beard, will present an evening of cartoons with musical accompaniment. While his delineations of American Life in cartoons, impersonations, song and story are full of wit, humor and fun, there is a sober thought through it all which says, "Have a worthy aim in life."

Montraville Wood, Scientist and Inventor, and Model Mono-rail Car.

Prof. Montraville Wood, scientist and inventor, assisted by his daughter, Miss Allene Wood, gives a popular demonstration of the mono-rail car, sending a miniature car out over the aisles of the auditorium during his lectures. A wrestling match between a man and a gyroscope weighing 24 pounds and running at the rate of 3,000 revolutions a minute, is another feature of each program, as is also a demonstration of the ultra violet ray, producing, among other effects the ghost dance and the handwriting on the wall.

The Weber Male Quartet is composed of four well-known concert and church soloists of New York City in entirely new and unique.

John B. Ratto, impersonating types of characters one meets in the average community, has filled nearly 2,000 engagements in nine years.

Gay Zenola MacLaren is one of the few great interpreters of the modern drama. Her methods and work make her unique among the great artists in this country. Miss MacLaren will be one of the most popular numbers on the entire series.

Schildkret Hungarian Orchestra

Samuel Schildkret first directed his Hungarian Orchestra during the World's Fair in Chicago, at which time this organization was engaged through Mrs. Potter Palmer, chairman of the woman's committee of the Columbian Exposition. For years he has appeared throughout the United States on the Lyceum and Chautauqua platform. He is a fine flute soloist as well as director.

Hon. Frank J. Cannon

Moritz Lhevinne, pianist and accompanist, combines a striking virile personality with his poetic conceptions and dramatic insight into the very soul of music.

Eugene Laurent, magician, this year with a coterie of five talented assistants, will present a musical and magical fantasia. No expense has been spared in the selection of curtains, draperies, bright costumes and stage effects. "Pandora's Box," "Paola The Little Clown," "The Wizard's Supper," "The Pigeon Trick" and "The Phantom Bride" are but a few of the illusions on this great program. Mr. Laurent has had the honor of appearing before numerous societies of scientific research and of some of the greatest college courses in the United States.
